

TenantNet™

Online Resource for Residential Tenants

... is getting RAVES!

"Amazing resource and what an example of how to use the internet."

— M.W., Tenant Attorney, United Kingdom

"Fantastic!" — R.D., United Tenants of Ontario

"With all of the totally disposable and silly uses of bandwidth on the Web, it's great to see it used in a way that helps ordinary people." — S.B., New York City tenant

"The only site we have seen for information about residential tenants' rights and it's extremely comprehensive. If you rent, you MUST add this link to your list."

— Progressive People Links

- Tenant "Frequently Asked Questions" (FAQ)
- Tenant Message Board and Forum
- periodic newsletter "Tenants Online"
- Fact Sheets on many topics
- NYC/NYS Rent Control/Rent Stabilization laws
- other Rent and Housing laws (20 states covered)
- Historical and Economic information on housing problems
- How to: Organize a tenants association, Handle Housing Court, Deal with Noisy neighbors, Heat problems, ...many other topics

Web: <http://tenant.net>

Email: tenant@tenant.net

Internet services provided by:
The Internet Connection
<http://www.cnct.com>

"Now, New York tenants can use the power of the law and the strength of a virtual group of advocates to take on landlords. TenantNet, an online resource for residential tenants, provides a wealth of information on the Internet for renters about their rights as tenants."

— @NY Internet Newsletter, January 1996

"You've been evicted, but no doubt your internet account is still intact, right? So log onto TenantNet and find valuable answers about tenants' rights and housing regulations, as well as regular updates on housing news. 'These are trying times for tenants,' begins the page. No lie. But at least we can still surf the Net." — City Limits Magazine, Jan. 1996

Featured on Hometown National Radio, January 1996

Awards — Point "Top 5% of all Web Sites", Magellan "3 Stars", Yahoo "3½ stars", — Planet Earth "Top 100 Web Sites" NBNSoft "Content Award"

TenantNet is a project of Tenant Watch, an informal network of tenant advocates. TenantNet is not a real estate referral service and does not help people looking for apartments, is not associated with any government agency or political party, and any advice or information cannot be construed as legal advice.